Support Groups can help individuals regain hope and find peace while grieving. Experiencing the death of a loved one can be devastating. Adjusting to the loss and changes often brings feelings of anger, sadness, depression, despair, and fear. Processing these feelings and thoughts can be critical to a healthy recovery. Support groups are based on confidentiality, trust and safety. Individuals find that they need not be alone during this often burdensome and lonely time. Seeking support during times of need is a sign, not of weakness, but of strength.
